The Case for Colocation:

Most business decision-makers are faced with a key question - should we build and manage our own IT infrastructure on premise, or take advantage of colocation? The majority of those executives decide that colocation is the right decision for their business.

Here's Why:

- Savings – Colocation eliminates the costs associated with building and maintaining equipment.
- Support – Leaving IT to the experts allows companies to focus on core competencies.
- Security – Greater access to space and power, maximizing disaster recovery options.
- Flexibility – Need to scale up? Additional capacity can be utilized as and when needed, cost effectively and quickly.

At NYI, colocation means a predictable infrastructure managed by a team of experienced tech professionals. You get fully redundant, world-class facilities, unparalleled flexibility and scalable solutions, with deployment turnaround times that are unmatched in our industry.

Keeping businesses online since 1996:

Colocation is our core service, we know it inside out. We've invested heavily to make sure we have the power, cooling and security infrastructure needed to ensure you get the 100% uptime you expect.

Here's what our clients say about us:

"As an industry leader in financial services technology solutions and services, NYI's technological prowess in meeting customers' needs was attractive to Alpha Plus. With their team's help we were able to further expand into other/non-standard services for our own customers. NYI has a well-established, proven record of maintaining availability and allowing 24/7 access."

— Kevin Davis, Trading Services, Alpha Plus

"NYI is everything and more that we need in a data center," The high-level services, flexibility and speed that NYI offers its customers are truly outstanding."
